The desire for excellence has been shown in nearly every phase of Jefferson High School this year. School spirit was much stronger as the students upheld the reputation of Jeff by doing their very best as a group. The teachers, too, did all that they possibly could to make pupils realize their own potential and to help them learn how to use this potential most effectively. New courses, new textbooks and new equipment aided the teacher in this task.

As individuals the students set their goals high and then worked their way slowly up. The underclassmen formed their own ideas of what their senior year will be like, and the seniors strove to improve themselves and get ready for the lives of college students.

The school building itself had many improvements made which changed classroom, lunchroom, and extra-curricular activity. Each of these had a very definite effect on the excellence which Jeff hopes to achieve.

Their Senior Year With Anticipation

One can always tell a senior by his yellow cords and the air of superiority that hovers above his head. The Jefferson Class of 1967 continued to carry on the tradition of upper-class authoritative abilities and accomplishments. All 532 seniors united to share the responsibilities accorded them.

Strong evidence of seniority appeared in the front rows of football and basketball Block Sections; wild cheering increased the pride in Jeff which will not end with graduation. After June, each senior will go his own way, leaving only the fond memories of Jeff days for posterity.

Seniors also matured in the attitudes of their studies. Term papers and other grueling projects took long hours of hard work and precious time. The school year of '66-'67, with the memorable Senior Prom, was actually an exciting one for the upperclassmen; they learned that the pressures of leadership must not be ignored.

The Jeff Juniors Gain Recognition

Room captains, Missy Kienly and Linda Glick, turn in wrapping paper money to Dan Clark, junior president.

The junior year is one of preparation. Sophomores of last year found that they had advanced to a position of importance. They were like neither the lowly sophomore nor the mighty senior but were beginning to make themselves heard in many fields. The girls could now wear full-length formals to dances, and the former B-team boys moved in to fill vital gaps. As is always the case, however, new found prestige brought with it a multitude of responsibility and problems. The courses were stiffer, and instructors were found to be more demanding and exorting. Organizations offered many juniors the opportunity to become officers and leaders. Other fields, such as Junior Achievement, were just opening to them.

As a primer for the Scholastic Aptitude Test, the juniors took the Preliminary Scholastic Aptitude Test: some of the more aspiring pupils hopefully signed up for the National Merit Scholarship Test.

The top ten of the junior class are as follows: Martha Groves, Chuck Walkup, Barb Burget, Carol Emery, John Rainier, Lynn Coyle, Marsha Idle, Brad Shafer, Bill Kirkpatrick, and Mike McKim.

New Doors Opened to Sophomores

In the very beginning, starting with orientation, sophomores found themselves awed by the immense responsibility of maintaining Jefferson's fine traditions. They had to assume new and radical methods to keep up their grades and still enjoy the wide variety of organizations which they could join. The pressure was on, and to some it brought frustration, anxiety, and worry. Those who met the challenge, however, found it stimulating.

This year's sophomores looked forward to an event unrivaled by any since the beginning of Jeff. This event is the scheduled opening in August of 1968 of a modern, well-planned high school which should provide unbelievable opportunities for this year's sophomores.

From feeling absorbed by the very structure of Jeff to becoming individuals working toward excellence was the sophomore class of Jeff. As the classrooms, stairways and corridors became familiar to them, they became an essential part of Jeff.

Debbie Crose talks to her counselor, Miss Jean Hilkert, about her academic curriculum for the following year.

Top ten sophomores—Mareanna Fruehwald, Jim Cohen, Mary Ann Maraechen, Sue McKay, Julie Dearing, Len

Excellence in Activities

Life outside of the classroom was changed very much in 1967. The pupils worked together well and the result of their cooperation was an excellent play, "Our Town," "The Unsinkable Molly Brown." Early in the year another Bronchoette Gallop King and a new Homecoming Queen began their reigns. In February, the Queen of Hearts joined the royal throng of Jefferson. Each class presented a pep session to arouse school spirit. The competition among the three classes caused this year's pep sessions to arouse school spirit. The competition among

The end of the school year found the seniors going back in time to the elegant era of King Arthur. This year's prom, "Camelot", was extremely different than its predecessors, and it, too, had the goal of excellence before it. Soon after the prom, however, the seniors filled the gym once more at commencement. They then walked into a new life in which excellence will still be their goal.

Pep Sessions Help to Spark Spirit

Kara Bishop and Vicki Richeson peek around the corner while waiting for the soph pep session to start.

"Forward the Red, forward the Black." The Bronchos did go forward and the student body was behind them all the way. This was shown through participation at pep sessions.

The purpose of pep sessions was to promote school spirit and enthusiasm. This was accomplished through cheers (led by varsity, Broncho, and B-team cheerleaders), speeches by the coaches, and by the team itself, and by telegrams.

Special things were also done at pep sessions. At our first one, the Broncho Cheerleader candidates competed in front of the student body. This gave the students an opportunity to see the candidates' qualifications. During Homecoming, the Queen candidates were presented at a Pep Session.

School spirit is raised, also, by skits presented by the classes at pep sessions. The sophomores' skit gave an idea of how the Marion game was going to be. They predicted that the Bronchos were going to beat the Giants; they did.

The sounds of victory ring out from Jeff Plateau as Don "Stork" LaFon announces defeat of another foe.

Impressing the enthusiastic basketball fans with a new yell are cheerleaders Carol Emery and Marsha Kennedy.

1967 Homecoming Queen and her court—Diane Walkey, Bonnie Vandergraff, Lucy Holer, Marilee Hall, Joy Good.

Caravan Highlights 1966 Homecoming

The 1966 Homecoming was a story of changes and an increased attempt to capture and control the students' enthusiasm. The Student Council sponsored a contest of the decorating skills of the senior, junior, and sophomore classes, and though all three floors were filled with colorful posters and streamers, the junior class and their third floor took all honors for the most outstanding performance. For another first in our history a caravan was formed to present the 1966 alumni and the stunning top five queen candidates. To round out the evening our Conference winning team dashed onto the field and enjoyed a 28-0 victory over Chartrand. Through the time and efforts of many, the 1966 Homecoming was truly as one of our cheerleaders said—"really neat".

Doug Sheets Crowned Gallop King

On the evening of October 22, 1966, the Sunshine Society held their thirtieth annual turn-about dance, the Bronchoette Gallop. Each girl danced with her special "Knight to Remember" to the enchanting music of Ray Gretencord and his band.

At 10:30 p.m., judging began for the corsage contest. Girls were to make a corsage depicting the favorite sport, hobby, or interest of their dates. Prizes were awarded for the funniest corsage, the most original corsage, and the best corsage.

The high point of the evening was the announcement of the King of the Gallop. Thirteen senior girls had carried the petitions for their favorite senior boys. Upon arriving at the dance, couples voted for their favorite candidate. Suspense mounted all evening until, at 11:00, Mary Ewan, Sunshine president, stepped to the stage to announce that Bob A. Page was second runner-up and that Jim White was first runner-up. Then, with the roll of the drums, Mary announced that Doug Sheets had been elected 1966 Gallop King. After the applause had died down and Doug has been crowned, he and his royal court led their traditional dance.

Peg Booher and Connie Underwood served as general co-chairmen of the 1966 Gallop. They with the assistance of Mrs. Ruth Murphy, sponsor, made the 1966 Gallop one of the most successful dances ever.

The crowning of the 1967 Gallop King, Doug Sheets, highlighted "A Knight to Remember," the Bronchoette Gallop.

"Our Town" Awarded Top Approval

Mrs. Gibbs, portrayed by Karen Babb, discusses everyday problems with Dr. Gibbs played by Jack Chenoweth.

The Sunnyside Auditorium, November 10 and 11, 1966, was the setting of the annual Jeff all-school play. This year Our Town, a play concerned with the element of time by Thornton Wilder, was presented.

Double cast as Emily Webb, Laurie Smith and Joy Good played the lead character. In the three-act performance, Emily for the first time began to recognize her love for George Gibbs, played by Joe Ray and Paul Braun, married him, and returned to a scene from her childhood after passing into the world of the dead. John Sarault, as the stage manager, moderated the presentation, discussing with the audience various events and aiding the cast in changing props between scenes.

Jon Schuster was appointed student director under the guidance of James Hawker, speech teacher, who was director. Working closely with the Our Town directors were English teacher, George Haley, as technical director and Richard Jaeger, music teacher, as business manager.

Door to "Camelot" Opens to Seniors

Senior Doug Mansfield works diligently to finish ceiling decorations for the Senior Prom on May 12.

On the evening of May 12, 1967, several hundred seniors and their dates entered King Arthur's Courts. After months of planning, organizing, and working, the seniors could relax and enjoy their own version of Camelot. Inside this wonderful world, the couples danced from nine until one to the soft music of the Glenn Miller Orchestra.

Joy Good and Mike Trombello were the co-chairmen of the Prom for the class of '67. The committee chairmen were Joy Good, decorations; Marjie Glenn, band; Francis VanDermay, pictures; Marsha Kennedy, invitations; John VonKannon, publicity; Connie Underwood, tickets; and Pat Kienly, programs. Mary Ewan was the student chairman of the after prom party. Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ewan, and Dr. and Mrs. Y. B. Hall were the co-chairmen of the party. Seniors were excused from classes the week before the Prom to prepare the gymnasium for the memorable event. The juniors checked coats, served refreshments, and took down decorations.

In happy anticipation of an unforgettable evening at the Senior Prom, Nancy Martin steps to meet her date.

Buddy De Franco, director of the Glenn Miller Orchestra, provided the music for this year's senior prom.

Graduation Opens Door to Future

Helping the principal's secretary, Mrs. Doris Willis, is good secretarial experience for senior, Sandy Ade.

With a misty eye and a reminiscing heart, the class of 1967 of Jefferson High School filed into the gymnasium on June 8, for Commencement. This event climaxed three long years at Jeff and opened the doors to an unknown future. Vesper Services were held the previous Sunday afternoon, where the students finally realized that their high school careers were near an end.

At the graduation ceremony, the graduating students processed in their long gowns into the gym to the playing of "Pomp and Circumstance." As they marched to the stage one by one, members of the Lafayette School Board presented their diplomas. After flipping the tassels on their mortar boards, those graduated joined the multitude of the alumni of Jefferson High School. The top ten members of the class wore gold tassels.

Christmas Mood Adds Holiday Joy

Operating the lights at Sunnyside is the difficult and confusing task assigned to Mr. George Haley.

The Jefferson High School Choral Department in cooperation with the Speech Department presented the "Christmas Mood" in Sunnyside Auditorium on December 5, 6, and 7. The program opened with "We Need a Little Christmas" sung by seniors Karen Babb and Jim Smith. Following were songs by A Cappella Choir, Voices of Jeff, Apollo Club, and the Jeff Dance Band. Also, there were many specialty numbers between scenes. These consisted of: Linda Brown with Mike Trombello as Santa Claus; the Friars—Mike High, Dan Pope, Jim O'Brien, and Dick Sullivan and the Dance Hall girls—Linda Horton, Christie Matter, Harriet Ware, and June McKenzie; the Jones kids—Barry Davis and Alice Vaughn. The religious part of the program was titled the "Festival of the Nine Lessons and Carols." The readers for the Festival were John Von Kannon and Paul Braun. The Festival was copied after an old English carol service which dates back to the 17th century. Soloists were Clarence Semmes, Lana Beauchamp, and Diana Best.

Queen's Coronation Brings Elations

The annual Queen of Hearts Dance, sponsored by the Jefferson Hi-Y Club, succeeded in producing an evening long to be remembered. This year's dance was held in the North Ballroom of the Purdue Union on February 11.

The couples danced from nine until twelve o'clock to the romantic music of John Wellman's Panoramic Orchestra. At the hour of coronation the court was announced. The attendants Linda Goodin, Lee Hall, Diane Walkey, Joy Good, and Laurie Smith were presented with red roses. A crown was placed on the head of Marsha Kennedy by president Denny Gobble, and a dedication song was played.

Everyone then returned to the dancing floor to complete the memorable, Valentine-accented night. As the evening ended, the Queen and her court received charms as keepsakes of their wonderful evening.

Denny Gobble served as general chairman of the successful dance, and other Hi-Y members took their positions as the heads of various other committees.

Smiling over the shoulder of escort, Lee Long, Queen Marsha Kennedy leads the customary dance.

Candidates for the Queen of Hearts Dance, Linda Goodin, Joy Good, Laurie Smith, Marsha Kennedy, Lee Hall, and Diane Walkey, wait anxiously for announcement of winner.

Excellence in Academics

Excellence is perhaps most evident in the academic life of a school. Classroom activity at Jeff was very much improved in 1967. The advanced courses, such as SMSG Math, PSSC Physics, and Honors English, gave qualified pupils an excellent opportunity to apply their skills. The new textbooks, however, added to the excellence which Jeff is constantly trying to achieve. In Art classes and Home Economics classes, equipment was the main concern. This year these departments received much equipment which improved the courses.

One area in which pupils spent much of their time while preparing for class was the library. In the summer before school began, the cramped library was transferred to a different place. Therefore, in 1967 pupils enjoyed a better equipped library with much more space. As a result of the new library, Jeff also gained a new study hall. These things contributed greatly to the excellence of Jefferson High School.

Shop Classes Teach Useful Skills

Printing students, Earl Idle and Earl Glick, busily pile and package newly-made attendance slips for the office.

Diversified opportunities for vocational training were offered to pupils of Jefferson through the schools fine Manual Arts Department. Woodworking classes constructed many practical and interesting projects, testing the pupils' skill and ingenuity. Auto mechanics classes learned a great deal about the nature of motors and engine repair, and electronics pupils studied electrical phases.

Print shop pupils applied the skills they had learned by actually printing dance programs, identification cards, school forms and stationery, and the Booster.

Machine shop pupils learned operational processes for many complicated power tools and were eventually able to manufacture vices and hammers.

Mechanical drawing acquainted pupils with drafting techniques and machine fundamentals. Architectural drawing, as well as many other facets of drafting, was also touched upon.

Auto shop students, Mike Haupt and Keith Runkle, combine efforts in figuring out their machines in class.

In his junior year Joe Bell is learning the basic fundamentals of constructing and finishing wooden objects.

Home Ec Develops Domestic Ability

Interior Decorating, an addition to Jeff's curriculum, offers girls ideas to improve their future homes.

The Jeff Home Economics Department set its goal at preparing students with the fundamentals of living in our modern society. Classes in clothing, foods, interior decorating, and family living were designed to instill in the pupils a knowledge of the latest methods of providing for a house and family.

One semester of interior decorating, a new course this year, gave instruction in home design and helped prepare students for similar and more advanced studies in college.

The delicious aromas coming from the foods room caused many passersby to ask themselves if these girls in Foods I, II, and III might provide competition for the cafeteria cooks.

Girls in clothing are proud to say, "I made it," when asked about a new dress. How to sew and save money in the process is a valuable skill learned in these classes.

Family living provided boys and girls with a proper background and attitude toward future marriage and family life.

Pam Traviolia discovers that she must follow the cookbook directions very carefully for success.

Business Courses Prepared Pupils

As a part of her business training, Kathy Fox learns the proper method of manipulating a ditto machine.

Jefferson High School offers comprehensive and varied commercial courses for advancement in the world of business.

Bookkeeping is the most essential qualification for business operation. This course gave students a detailed study in recording the assets, liabilities, and profits of a well-ordered business firm.

A study of shorthand was necessary for students who plan to carry on secretarial work. Transcription, offered along with this, explained to the pupils how to translate their shorthand easily and quickly.

Typing seemed to be more or less a favorite of many Jeff students. Basic fundamentals were stressed in Typing I while speed and accuracy were the main details emphasized in the courses Typing II and III.

The business teachers are Mr. Kenneth Andrews, Mr. Ernest Cortner, Mr. James Stalker, Mrs. Mary Jane Boyle, Mrs. Geraldine Heath, Mr. George Newell, and Mr. Russell Bradley.

In Office Practice, Judi Drummer uses the dictaphone while Jackie Paris adds figures on the adding machine.

Mrs. Boyle uses the overhead projector in an attempt to explain the fundamentals of bookkeeping to her class.

Our fine speech teacher, Mr. Hawker, vividly points out to one of his classroom discussion groups that the proper method of developing a speech is with a liberal quantity of humor.

Speech Classes Encouraged Oration

Becoming acquainted with many different phases and types of speech were the objectives of the speech classes. Each pupil was required to record a poetry selection and an advertising announcement, and an evaluation was made to help the student improve his articulation, pronunciation, and manipulation and to help him develop mood. Speeches using concrete objects and charts as visual aids were assigned as were speeches relating how to do something. Lists of forms of support for speeches were studied, and a persuasive speech was presented using these forms.

Sophomores enrolled in Speech Development were presented with a more basic summary of speech. Besides the required speeches, these students were permitted to become somewhat familiar with the radio equipment.

Since speech courses are required by many colleges and universities, students taking advantage of this opportunity were rewarded greatly.

In an illustrated speech junior Jack Pierce explains changes in defense spending over a twenty year period.

Replacing books is a common task for library assistants Charlotte Henson and Rita Simpson.

Students Find New Library Helpful

The new Jefferson High School library happened to be a facility for which Jeff students could be proud. The transformation took place last summer to replace the old, overcrowded library, and the addition of new novels and other literature increased its popularity. Information contained in current periodicals, both educational and entertaining, provided interesting topics for speeches, themes, and special reports.

In addition to being a source of reference material, the library was often a student's favorite place of study. It was open to pupils during lunch periods, before and after school, and during study halls.

Student assistants, under the direction of Mrs. Erma Gene McVicker and Mr. Stephen Wheeler, aided these librarians in their many duties. They checked books in and out of the library, sent notices for overdue books, and collected fees for the late books. Teachers were permitted to take their classes there for research projects and term papers.

For sophomore Scott Spence, homework becomes a cinch with the AV sight and sound machine.

Choral director Richard Jaeger explains the proper way to denote sharps, flats, and count various beats to Kirk Elliot while other members of the fifth hour music theory class observe and take notes.

Art—Music Theory Implant Culture

Students learned to appreciate the cultures of the world by enrolling in classes in art and music theory.

Richard Jaeger instructed the music theory pupils in the many facets of music. Students discovered the method of entwining melody with harmony to produce song. Also, they learned about the history of music and musical instruments, the terms of music, and the elements of constructing a chord and the uses and effects of the chords.

In her art classes, Miss Georgianna Kienly emphasized the many different media in which one may choose to work. Assignments varied from modeling clay and carving blocks to painting still life and drawing in pencil. Each six weeks, a committee chose four subjects to be interpreted by each student. These required drawings and were submitted in a sketchbook. In addition to their actual experiences with the art materials, students learned about some of the great artists, their styles, and their outstanding works.

Putting her clay figurine into the oven to bake is the final step for senior art student Sue Brown.

Health Teaches Us Body Functions

Pointing to Sadie, Vicky Anderson explains, "And this is the left lung," as Dee Dee Hartnett goes on reading.

Health, a one-semester course required for graduation, enables students to learn how the body functions, and what we would do to keep it operating properly.

This year our Health and Safety classes were taught by Mrs. Emily Price and Mr. Orval Martin.

New textbooks and a Medical Self Help Program, a course in first aid, were acquired this year which gave the health students knowledge of the latest discoveries in the field of drugs and synthetic devices. Sadie, the perfect model of the human body, made it easier for the girls in Mrs. Price's class to remember the different organs and their functions. At the same time, the required notebooks helped them to remember the different kinds of vitamins, the gland functions, the bones, and other topics.

Films, filmstrips, and magazines, also helped to make health more interesting by keeping the students more informed about the advances and discoveries of medical science in this modern world.

Sophomores Bob Frey and Charles Christy demonstrate the correct procedure for taking pulse rate.

Gym Students Found Lost Muscles

"A one and two and three and four ... halt." Thus, the frantic year began for the sophomores. Pupils in the first half of the alphabet were required to take Physical Education the first semester, and the latter part took it the second semester.

Under the supervision of Mr. Norm Willey and Mr. Jack Schult, the boys' gym classes in the fall and spring learned the tactics of track, football, and softball. They were blessed with only a few pair of ripped trousers. Throughout the winter, the boys developed their basketball and gymnastic skills.

The girls' P.E. classes were headed again by Mrs. Eleanor Beard. All year the girls enjoyed playing kick soccer and hockey on the big gym floor. On testing days the girls visited the cafeteria for a more relaxed and redolent atmosphere.

To reduce the size of gym classes during the regular school year, summer physical education classes were offered. Mrs. Emily Price took over the duties of instructing the girls during this time.

"Then sit up and touch your knees," says Coach Schult as he instructs his boys' gym class how to do sit-ups.

It's a topsy-turvy world for the sophomore girls as they do their best to do a handstand for ten seconds.

Mrs. Brunk hopes that Steve Wilson, Keith Snyder, and Candi Brunk will appreciate listening to Poe's poems.

Junior Charlotte Jones, Barb Burget, and Elaine Mattingly hurriedly choose novels for their book reports.

English Courses Provide the Basic

Sophomore Greg Swarts looks hurriedly through the card catalog as he tries to find a new book.

Members of the senior Honors English class find that discussion groups develop interesting and entertaining points of view. The purpose of this class was to provide a challenge for pupils of English literature.

Grammar for College-Bound Pupils

The Honors English Classes studied much the same things this year as they have in previous years. These sophomores, juniors, and seniors spent their hours reading and discussing World literature, American literature and English literature respectively. In-class themes also were a major part of the program as well as lengthy term papers.

Pupils taking academic and general English learned and practiced the fundamentals of grammar. Differentiating between the use of a comma and a semi-colon became familiar practice to these pupils.

As its name implies, the composition classes critically studied and tried to improve their style of writing. They, too, had Christmas vacation hindered by term papers.

Learning the basic mechanics of running a newspaper was the main objective of the journalism pupils. The articles they wrote gave them a broader knowledge of the course.

Foreign Languages Credits Add to Explaining her project on the Romans' methods of war is Rhonda Hill, a second year Latin student.

Jane Smith and John Rainier practice industriously a dialogue to deliver in second year German class.

In Spanish it's "Buenos Dias;" in Latin it's "Salve;" in German it's "Guten Tag;" and in French it's "Bonjour." Students of foreign languages studied all phases of their particular language.

Spanish students spent many hours learning new verb forms and practicing with tapes. Third year students learned the Spanish tradition of "Tres Reyes Magos" or Twelfth Night by receiving miniature sarapes.

The period of Caesar's rule in Rome was the basis of study for Latin pupils. Translating passages from the textbooks and studying Ovid occupied much of their time.

German classes were required to draw maps and locate points of interest. Singing songs with German lyrics proved to be pleasant.

French students celebrated Christmas by making cards for each other. Third year students were required to speak French in class.

U. S. History students fulfill their class requirements by examining some of the exhibits in a local museum.

Social Studies Help Us Interpret

Seniors in Civics class learn how their government is run. Donna DeYoung passes out pamphlets for study.

Senior Lowell Shonk carefully checks stock market returns in order to finish a paper for economics class.

Dave Thake, Dave Weyls, and Harold Ringley listen as Joan Miller explains the operation of a voting machine.

Modern Concepts

Modern man must be acquainted with his American Heritage to produce his inalienable rights. As American citizens and leaders of tomorrow, we owe it to others and ourselves to grasp the meaning of freedom and its place in government.

An understanding of the past and present cultures was one of the goals of our world history, United States history, civics, and sociology classes. United States history and world history courses inform us of problems which earlier men incurred. Civics, a graduation requirement for seniors, teaches them the duties of becoming a better citizen.

Another goal of the social studies courses was the gaining of knowledge of the governmental process, which helps us to interpret the concepts of our modern world.

Current events were also a part of the different history classes. To understand these international situations, the students used U.S. News and World Report, Time and newspapers as sources.

Demonstrating his knowledge of the European continent in a U.S. History I class is Fritz Ahlersmeyer.

Math is usually the main topic among these four senior boys as they study in the library. Steve McAdams, Jim Townsend, Dave Newhart, Mike Trombello are a common sight for pupils who have study halls at this time.

Factors, Figures,

In one of Mr. Reeve's senior trigonometry classes, Marsha Kennedy explains the answer to a hard problem.

Junior Betsy Holfelder, a second year Algebra student, works diligently to finish the next day's assignment.

Senior Trigonometry pupils Larry Māy, Linda Goodin, and Rick Bolyard discuss the explanation of a problem.

Their amused expressions reveal that their explanation is probably not the most accurate or reasonable one.

and Functions Confuse Math Pupils

The mathematics department at Jefferson presented a varied program of courses which were directly related to the potentials of the student. This also allowed for the needs of each individual student. The math program ranged from general math, which was designed to give the student a basic background needed for future years, to the SMSG program, which gave college-bound seniors a solid foundation in the field of higher mathematics. Many of the courses taken were ordinarily not offered until the freshman and sophomore years of college. This gave students a head start in rugged college study.

Because of this diversification, the math department rated as one of the finest in the state during the past year. Milton Leverenz again acted as head of this department. Mr. Leverenz, in conjunction with the other math teachers, formulated the programs which were followed by the math department. All in all, it was just another great year for the Jeff mathematics department.

"I found it, Dad," exclaims Julia Conkling to father-math teacher Kenneth Conkling in SMSG Algebra.

Working with flowering plants is found, by these aspiring biology students, vital to comprehending any life.

Biology, Physics,

The field of science is the most expanding and advancing area in the curriculum at Jeff. This is understandable in that in all the world the most gigantic strides are being made in the multiplicity of fields of science. High-channeled synchronous satellites, concentrated-neutron blast envelopes, UFO's, curing cancer, VTOL's and lithium batteries are all things into which our lives are being projected. Oddities and startling new facts concerning the human body and its acclimation to varying environments are awaiting our discovery.

The stimulating courses offered us—from physical science through biology and chemistry to accelerated physics—are building a background for a future in lives saturated with science.

Mixing solutions of distilled water and sodium nitrate is part of the experiment done by these chemists.

"Chow time, little fishies," orders Tim Fogarty as he assists Biology teachers by feeding the tropical fish.

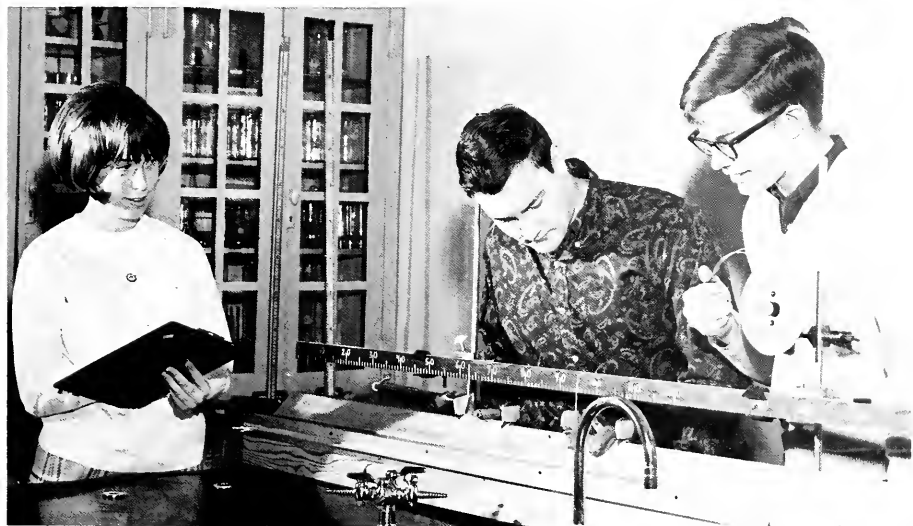

Steve Dillon and Liz Hass, measuring the acceleration of a cart, perform just one of the many Physics labs.

and Chemistry Challenges Students

Physics students enthusiastically watch for evidences of change in kinetic energy during an elastic collision.

Excellence in Organizations

Excellence in organizations was also evident at Jeff in 1967. The various groups donated much of their time to working for charitable organizations as well as entertaining themselves at parties throughout the year. The long-standing organizations, such as the Student Council, maintained their reputations and boosted the reputation of Jeff. New organizations, such as the History Club, broadened the already extremely varied extra-curricular schedule at Jefferson. The membership in all clubs was much larger than it was in 1966, because pupils began taking more interest in these activities.

The occupational clubs gave interested pupils an opportunity to inquire and learn more about certain occupations. This year these groups, too, were more active. Field trips were numerous and the pupils learned a great deal from them and from the various speakers at their meetings. As always, excellence was the goal of all Jeff's organizations.

Striving Toward a More Democratic

Seniors Gary Wright, John VonKannon discuss changes to be made in the constitution of the Student Council.

The Student Council of Jefferson High School is made up of representatives from each homeroom. This year the council's main goals were to include the entire student body in the functioning of the council and to make the council a more democratic organization.

To gain insight on the operation of a council, two senior officers attended a summer convention of student council members which was held at Indiana University.

This year the Student Council sponsored and helped with several projects. The annual "back to school" dance, the teachers' tea, and a basketball mixer were among the projects. The council helped with Homecoming activities and with "Operation Santa Claus."

Officers for the year were as follows: Mike Trombello, president; Bill Kirkpatrick, vice-president; Joy Good, treasurer; Marsha Kennedy, secretary; and Connie Hughes, assistant secretary. Faculty advisors were Mr. Frank Lane and Mr. Ernest Cortner.

Traditional Duty

The Jefferson High School Wilma Fletmeyer Chapter of the National Honor Society inducted its new members in the fall. Requirements for admittance are that a pupil possess characteristics of outstanding scholarship, service, character, and leadership. The society consists of pupils in the upper six per cent of the senior class and the upper four per cent of the junior class.

The members of Jeff's organization of honor students were presented with membership cards and certificates of merit on honor day. Official gold pins, charms, and other insignia were made available to all members. Also, junior members ushered at commencement and vesper services.

The officers of the chapter, three seniors, were: Lee Hall, president; Lowell Shonk, vice-president; and Kate McQueen, secretary-treasurer. Kenneth Conkling was the sponsor.

Honor Society member Gary Wright has some questions concerning college which Mr. Charles Martin answers.

September Popcorn Sale Success

Comparing outfits of German boys and girls are German Club members, Debby Lanum and John Rainer.

The Deutsche Verein began the year with a rush of money making projects in order to be able to reach their ultimate goal, a trip to Milwaukee. A popcorn sale was undertaken first by the German students. Door to door selling of five pound bags of popcorn continued throughout September. They added to their treasury by holding car washes and bake sales on warm, sunny days.

Showing slides of different regions of Germany, listening to native Germans tell of their experiences and seeing various German displays helped to give the Deutsche Verein members a better cultural background.

Mr. Raymond McGlothlin was the sponsor of the Deutsche Verein. Directing the club to a successful year were its officers: John Rainer, president; Jeff Long, vice president; Jane Smith, secretary; and Richard Foxworthy, treasurer.

Spanish Club Sponsored Car Wash

Again this year, the Spanish Club members explored the culture and traditions of Spain, Mexico, and the Latin American countries through their various activities. Guest speakers throughout the year stimulated the students in their interest of Spanish.

The students elected as officers of the Spanish Club were Mary Ewan, president; Ginny Kochert, treasurer; and Valerie Niswonger, secretary. The sponsors of the club were Mrs. Bonnie Coy and Mrs. Elizabeth Clements.

A car wash was held early in the year to help raise money for a hopeful trip to Mexico. The trip will be taken if an adult leader can be found. A Christmas Fiesta was planned and held in December. Rita VanMeter was the chairman of this event. A pinata filled with candy was the added attraction of the Fiesta. A menu consisting entirely of Spanish foods was included. A special guest showed slides of his visit to Mexico. By the end of the evening the pupils felt as if they were real Spaniards. In fact, many even took a siesta.

Key Club Extends Services to Jeff

omework is far from their thoughts as Steve VanWinkle and Lowell Shonk wait for the meeting to begin.

Lafayette Jefferson High's Key Club members again busied themselves by carrying out the many helpful services which they offer to both the school and to the community.

The objectives of the 1966-67 version of the Key Club were to help develop leadership and initiative among its members, and to help mold good citizens by serving others.

Mike Trombello was elected president of this year's organization. The other officers were Mike McCloud, vice president; Gary Wright, secretary; and Rick Bolyard, treasurer. The sponsors of Key Club were Mr. George Newell and Mr. Kenneth Kauffman.

Among the duties performed by the club were ushering at athletic contests, polishing school trophies, sending money to needy families, and holding car washes.

When not working, members enjoyed such activities as dinner meetings, hayrides, and making a Christmas float.

Was the Goal of Sunshine Society

Many projects were on the agenda of the Sunshine Society during the 1966-67 school year. The year began with the membership drive and the organizational meeting. Nearly 300 girls joined Sunshine this year. Activities included attending the District Sunshine Convention, sponsoring the Gallop, selling Homecoming mums and Valentine carnations and preparing Christmas baskets for the needy. Kathy Otten and Diana Prentiss were in charge of recruiting sophomore girls to work in the Sunshine coat room and concessions stand. In the spring banquets were held honoring the fathers and the mothers.

Mary Ewan served as president of Sunshine Society. Marcia Beck was vice president; Ellen Fritsch was treasurer; Candi Brunk was secretary, and Lee Hall was parliamentarian. The officers with the assistance of the Sunshine Board and Mrs. Ruth Murphy, advisor, made a number of decisions and discussed many plans throughout the year.

The year closed with the election and installation of officers for next year.

Making favors for the Dad-Daughter banquet keeps Sunshine member Linda Johnson and her committee busy.

Assisting Cathy Clossin with the Sunshine Christmas display is senior member Charlotte Henson.

Hi-Y Sponsors "Queen of Hearts"

Jefferson High School's Hi-Y club, one of three extra-curricular service organizations supported by the school, began another busy year with its candlelight induction service.

The first item on the organization's long list of school and community projects was the annual Thanksgiving convocation. The 1967 Queen of Hearts Dance and the Easter convocation followed respectively. The club also donated and decorated the school Christmas tree, and gave baskets of food to needy families in the Lafayette area.

Leading and organizing the club's functions was president Denny Coble. The vice president was Jeff Dolbow. Secretary of the group was Rick Knoop; John Culver served as treasurer; and Randy Kraft was the chaplain.

Business meetings were held in the Pine Room and recreational meetings were held at the YMCA. Much of the club's success was accredited to its two fine sponsors, who were Mr. Lowell Knoop and Mr. Robert Nichols.

DCE Emphasized Job Experience

The Diversified Cooperative Education program, or as it was more commonly known, the DCE program, was an important part of the educational process at Jeff this past year. The program was designed to give students actual work experience. Of course, the students had to take regular school courses as well. Thus, the participant benefitted in two ways.

Senior members of DCE left school following lunch and went to work at a large variety of jobs. Some did secretarial work while others worked as drafters, cooks, dental assistants, machinists and clerks. The employers graded these students in several areas. To show its gratitude, the DCE club hosted the employers at a banquet in May. To pay for this banquet and other club projects the members performed a number of tasks. One of the most important of these was the sponsoring of a mixer after one of Jeff's home basketball games.

Key Reynolds earns money in her spare time by working as a receptionist at Ayres during after school hours.

Special Education Called FTA'ers

Members of Future Teachers of America prepare to leave for the trip to the Lincoln Elementary School.

Under the sponsorship of Mr. Robert Stormont, the Future Teachers of America experienced many exciting and realistic encounters that occur in the world of teaching. The monthly meetings were held on a regular schedule with planned activities, a business meeting or a combination of both. A short jaunt to Longlois Grade School gave the FTA members an inside glimpse at the instruction techniques of Special Education. High school speakers who worked in the Lafayette Summer School Program told of their teaching experiences with young students in the fields of art and recreation. These activities were supplemented with talks by teachers, discussion panels, and trips to various educational centers. The gift of a Christmas basket and the Christmas party highlighted the club's year.

President Laurie Smith; vice president Joe Fife; secretary Carolyn Lybault; and treasurer Kathy Stair were the FTA's officers.

Speakers Discuss Health Careers

Girls and boys interested in various health careers were formally initiated into the Jefferson Future Nurses' Club. In anticipation of these careers, speakers on operating room and office nursing and dentistry were guests at the meetings. On April 8, members journeyed to Indiana University's Medical Center for its Demonstration Day.

Many projects were undertaken during the year. An October bake sale was very successful. For Thanksgiving, the club made tray favors for patients in Home Hospital and furnished a Thanksgiving basket for a needy family. Half of the proceeds from the FNC-sponsored mixer was donated to the National Heart Fund. The club honored its dads at a March Dads' Night.

Club sponsor and Jeff school nurse, Mrs. Sally McIntire, aided Camilla Carter, president; Debbie Lanum, vice president; Patricia Morgan, secretary; and Chris Carder, treasurer in leadership of the club.

J Club Again Boosted the Broncho

J-Club cheerleader Mark Beck struggles furiously but to no avail against his overly zealous counterparts.

One of the most popular organizations at Jeff has always been the J-Club. This lettermen's organization is composed of athletes who have completed the tasks required to earn a varsity letter. To the Jefferson athlete, becoming a member of this club has always been a real honor. This was reflected in the intense competition for varsity letters.

The J-Club was active in many school functions this year. These boys were given the honor of escorting and driving the Homecoming Queen candidates on the night of the festivities. A mixer after one of our home games was also sponsored by this organization. The boys were very helpful at home basketball games as they loyally held the ropes at half-time to protect our gym floor.

John Scheumann led the club this year. He was aided by John Kemble, vice president; Bob A. Page, secretary; Bob Dickson, treasurer; and Mike Aldridge, sergeant at arms.

Spirit Aroused by Advisory Board

The Cheerleaders' Advisory Board was responsible for the activities connected with football and basketball. With Miss Hilkert, its sponsor, it offered constructive support of sports in behalf of the student body. Marjie Glenn presided over the Board. Lucy Holer was the vice president and Diane Walkey was the secretary. Cheerleaders are automatically members of the Board. Members are also picked from various organizations.

The Advisory Board was responsible for the pep sessions, the pep signs, and for pep tags. The Homecoming festivities were planned and carried out by the Advisory Board. At tourney time the Board sponsored a yell contest and organized the caravans. A Sectional Tea honoring all cheerleaders of the schools participating in the sectionals was hostessed by the Advisory Board.

The Advisory Board, with the help of some teachers, ended the year by screening the Varsity Cheerleader candidates for next year.

Signs to boost Broncho spirit are put up in the halls by avid fans, Kathy Carter, Lee Hall, and Linda Long.

J-V's Prepare for Varsity Sports

Those Jefferson Bronchos who earned a Junior-Varsity letter in one of Jeff's many sports joined to form an exclusive club under the sponsorship of Mr. J. E. Schult.

These lettermen with the leadership of Dan Wagner, president; Bill Long, vice president; Gary Kinnear, secretary; and Jim Cohen, treasurer, served as ushers at our basketball games. They were the boys who patiently passed out numberable programs to the huge crowds and who actually directed the spectators to their seats. Through these lettermen the public was confronted with another segment of Jeff's fine athletic department.

A certain amount of prestige has also been added to the winning of a J-V letter through this unique club. It stands as a stepping stone to that awesome big J.

Finally, at the end of the year all the members assembled and planned the annual J-V picnic. In a very real manner the Junior Varsity club makes its presence felt.

Holding his football helmet reminds Joe Carrel of his year of play as a member of the junior varsity squad.

Broncho Broadcasters Realize New

Missy Kienly still doesn't understand the principles of the radio as well as Dan Grayson and Mr. Fraser do.

Membership in Broncho Broadcasters exceeded one hundred this year. The club helped pupils to learn more about the functions of radio and television work.

Broncho Broadcasters began the new school year by electing their officers Dan Grayson was elected president; Connie Hughes was chosen as vice president; Missy Kienly performed the secretarial duties; and Cathy Closin served as treasurer. Mr. William Fraser, Jeff's radio teacher, was the organization's sponsor. He added humor as well as guidance to the club.

The club held their annual party in December having a Christmas theme. Learning how to produce a good radio show was one of the accomplishments made by the Broncho Broadcasters this year. The more experienced members served as disc jockeys throughout the year. The season was climaxed in the spring when the club made a trip to an Indianapolis television station.

Maintaining Reputation in Nation Is

Varsity debaters, Brad Shafer and John Bridge, labor industriously at preparing their negative refutation.

At the weekly NFL speech meets, Jeff students gained skill and experience in the various areas of competition. They participated in debate, student congress, discussion, oratorical declamation, boys' and girls' extemporaneous speaking, original oration, dramatic and humorous interpretation, poetry reading, and radio. Several attended NFL State and Open State competition.

Last year at the National Speech and Debate Contest held in Albuquerque, New Mexico, Kris LaMar finished fifth in the nation in girls' extemporaneous and the debate team finished eighth. # Subscriptions, Stories and Pictures

1, 2, 3, 4, . . . The familiar sounds of Nautilus staff members as they counted spaces for copy were heard during sixth hour everyday in the Nautilus room. Staff members were all kept busy writing headlines, stories, and captions. The year proved to be a hectic one for the editors who were trying to retake pictures and rewrite stories in order to meet deadlines. Staff members even found themselves putting in extra hours in the Nautilus room during semester break.

However, the year was not completely filled with work. Sixth hour pizza parties added incentive to all staff members.

The year was climaxed with the signature dance where the Nautiluses were distributed. Staff members felt great relief as the last yearbook was claimed; but they also felt proud that they were able to contribute their services and talents to Jeff.

This year the Nautilus Staff was headed by Pam Moffitt, copy editor; Jeanne Lottes, layout editor; and Barb Gould, business editor. Mr. Kenneth Andrews was the faculty sponsor.

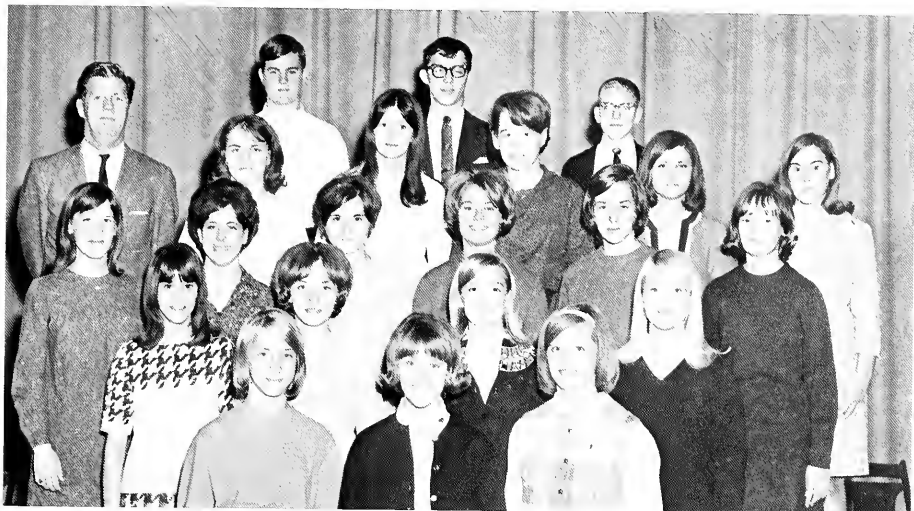

Barb Burget obediently composes her Nautilus stories, but not without glancing at ever present Pam Moffitt.

Booster Reports Latest Happenings

Racing to meet the last deadline of the semester, the Booster typists find themselves staying after school.

Our school's newspaper, the Booster, is the informative voice of Jeff. The six-page paper, produced bimonthly, gave us the best coverage in the school's sports, tips on the latest fashions, and interesting write-ups on teachers and other interests.

This year the Booster Staff started the school year by competing among themselves to see who would sell the most subscriptions, and they awarded prizes to the winners. The winners were Jeanne Phillippi, who sold 217 subscriptions, and won ten dollars; and Nancy Smith, who sold 100 subscriptions and won five dollars. Fine salesmanship and hard work made this drive the most successful they had ever had. They sold approximately 1422.

The Booster Staff also presented the annual convocation at the beginning of the year to boost the subscription sale. After the convocation, papers were delivered to everyone.

For the special trip of the year, the Booster Staff went to St. Louis. There they visited the St. Louis Post Dispatch.

Folding Boosters and Rotos for distribution is a frequent task for staff members Nancy Smith and Dave Thake.

First Jeff History Club Successful

Jefferson's fine organization program was graced this season by the adoption of a new and promising member—the History Club.

The goal of the club was to encourage the study of history and to adopt history projects. The main emphasis of study was placed on "local history and achievement."

Among the many activities of the club were the selling of Indiana Sesquicentennial wall decorations, the acting of two members as hosts at the Tippecanoe County Museum on week-ends, and the starting of a "hall of fame" of outstanding Jefferson graduates.

Officers for the club were Ellen Fritsch, president; Steve Hopkins, vice president; and Grace Bender, secretary-treasurer. The sponsors were Mr. E. Hopkins, Mr. Bender, and Mr. Paprocki.

History Club meetings were held in Jefferson's Pine Room. The meetings featured many interesting speakers, who reported to the membership on varied topics of historical value. The organization is affiliated with the Indiana Junior Historical Society.

Training Choir Formed For Sophs

Every year new activities and ideas are formulated within the scope of Jeff High. Within the radius of our musical organizations, this aspect also prevails. Now, the Girls' and Boys' Glee Club is a part of our harmonious organizations.

Mr. Richard Jaeger established this club, with the firm purpose in mind, to prepare the incoming sophomores for their future advancement into the more talented groups. Thus, this new Glee Club is the training choir for A Cappella, Apollo Club and the Voices of Jeff.

The girls and boys practiced at different hours. This enabled the instructor to develop each group individually. The entire group has thus far proven itself.

Although Jeff must wait a year or two to see the outcome, this Girls' and Boys' Glee Club may improve the voices of some of the students who may not have otherwise been able to do so. As this was the first year for this choir, officers were not elected.

Mr. Gary Branson accompanies the Girls' Glee Club as they practice one of their favorite pieces of music.

Sale of Christmas Records Proved

In the bedlam before the final night of the Christmas Mood, members of the choirs exchange jovial greetings.

The Jefferson High School A Cappella Choir completed its twenty-third year of existence this year. These talented singers have long been a group of performers in which the community and the school have taken pride.

This year the choir faced a full calendar of events. Popular wherever they sang, they made appearances at Ball State University, Illinois Wesleyan, and Culver Military Academy. The choir also sang for the Republican Lincoln Day Dinner and for Rotary. In the spring they gave convocations at Jeff, Sunnyside Junior High, and Tecumseh Junior High and entertained for the Sunshine Mother-Daughter Banquet. The excellence of "The Unsinkable Molly Brown," was attested to by the standing room only audience. The Christmas Mood was another successful project of the choir. The highlight of the year was the production of a record of Christmas music.

This year's officers were as follows: John Sarault, president; Larry Gardner, vice-president; Linda Horton, secretary; Vivian Veach, treasurer; Norma Ely, historian. Mr. Richard Jaeger was the director, and Mr. Gary Branson was the associate director.

A Cappella: ROW 1: Christie Mater, Debby Herendeen, Connie Underwood, Shaion Rowe, Sandy McDill, Sandy Smith, Valerie Niswonger. ROW 2: Nancy Foley, Mary Barnes, Linda Scheller, June McKenzie, Debbie Hufford, Lucy Holer, Mikee Sparks, Norma Ely. ## Apollo Club Produces Entertainment

These four Apollo Club members seem stuck with the tedious chore of sorting folders and handing out music.

In all respects, the strong, masculine voices of the members of Jeff's Apollo Club were pleasing to all listeners. These boys were able to provide a distinctive type of music through different choral arrangements.

Under the capable direction of Mr. Gary Branson, accompanist, and Mr. Richard Jaeger, choral director, a late February program was given at Trinity Methodist Church. The Apollo Club also participated in the annual Christmas Mood program put on by the Jefferson High Speech and Music Departments. The group presented the musical portion of the Thanksgiving Convocation.

The Apollo Club chose Fred Coon for the position of president. Tom Miller was vice-president. Gregg Boehning held the office of secretary-treasurer this year. Besides the fun these boys shared, the experience gained through participation in a singing group was a great benefit.

Voices of Jeff Delight All Listeners

The Voices of Jeff nervously warm up for their part in the Christmas Mood presented by Music Department.

This year the Voices of Jeff were composed of thirty members which included sophomore, junior, and senior girls. Membership in Voices of Jeff was both elective and selective. Wearing long gold satin gowns, the group entertained many clubs and civic organizations throughout the year with their songs ranging from pop and jazz to classical and spiritual. They participated in the annual Christmas Mood sponsored by the Music Department and also presented a Christmas program at the Pythian Home. The Voices of Jeff also sang at the Sunshine's Father-Daughter Banquet in February singing the theme "Pop 'O My Heart." Toward the spring of the year, the organization performed at two Purdue convocations. They were asked to present a show at Duncan Hall and The Trails.

Presiding over the Voices of Jeff for the 1966-67 school year was Patti Pottlitzer. Barb Surface carried out the secretarial duties. The group's director was Mr. Richard Jaeger.

The Orchestra Stressed Excellence

Fred Vyverberg and Tom Bishop practice their role that they play in the percussion section of the orchestra.

The Jefferson orchestra showed that it was the best string organization in the area. The orchestra, directed by Mr. C. James Schnabel, furthered the musical abilities of the players and prepared them for college music. In addition to helping themselves, the orchestra shared its music with many others interested in Bach, Brahms, and Beethoven. Several concerts were given in the Sunnyside auditorium. These included Christmas and Spring concerts. In June, the orchestra provided music for commencement.

Several members of the organization "did a little extra" when they participated in the state music contest. All of the orchestra's entries rated a first in regional competition at Frankfort. Those entered in the top class were then eligible to go on to a final state meet held in Indianapolis. Jeff held its own against the state's roughest competition.

Camilla Carter served as president of the orchestra. Jim Steel provided back-up support as vice president. Nancy Troxel handled the money as treasurer and Clarence Semmes acted as secretary.

Blue Ribbons Were Given to Many

Jim White, the student director of the symphonic band, seriously conducts a piece of music in 4/4 time.

This year proved very busy for Jeff's Symphonic Band under the direction of Mr. Carroll Copeland. The majority of the members were juniors and seniors. These members opened the year by electing their officers Jim White, a senior, was elected president; Gary Henriot became the new vice president; Linda Grounds was elected secretary; and Rich Foxworthy became the treasurer.

On February 4, the band participated in a district contest at Frankfort. Out of the 45 solos and ensembles that were entered, 34 were awarded first place and 11 were awarded second place. Out of these, twenty participated in the state contest held on February 18, at Butler University.

On February 19, the Concert and Symphonic Bands presented a band concert at Sunnyside Junior High School. Numbers such as "Overture in B Flat" and "March in the Golden Brass" were played.

The band ended the year by participating in a contest held on April 15.

Training Ground

The Concert Band, composed of forty-nine rising musicians, contributed to the highly rated Jefferson musical program. Hours of diligent practice proved worthwhile when concerts were presented for the entertainment of the public. The Christmas Concert was given on December fourth, and the Winter Concert was held on February nineteenth. Concert Band also participated in the annual band contest held at Jeff on April fifteenth.

Under the direction of Mr. Carroll Copeland Concert Band officers — Steve Lohmeyer, president; Ken Murray, vice president; Jane Overly, librarian; Marilou Kenens, secretary; and Beverly Alban, treasurer — made decisions concerning the band's activities. Selling Texas Fruit Cakes through November and December and selling Valentine candy in February were money-making projects for the band.

Practices, concerts, trips, contests, and extra projects comprised a most successful and active year for members of Concert Band.

Eighth ranked, marching Bronchos display their routine before a panel of judges at the Indiana State Fair.

Broncho Marching

For some, a breathtaking part of our football games was the spectacular half-time show. These colorful exhibitions of Broncho precision were performed under the leadership of Mr. C. Copeland and Mr. J. Schnabel. This one hundred twenty-member marching band had for its drum majors John Hasslebring and Dave Early, while the choreographer, Libby Kemble directed the twenty one majorettes.

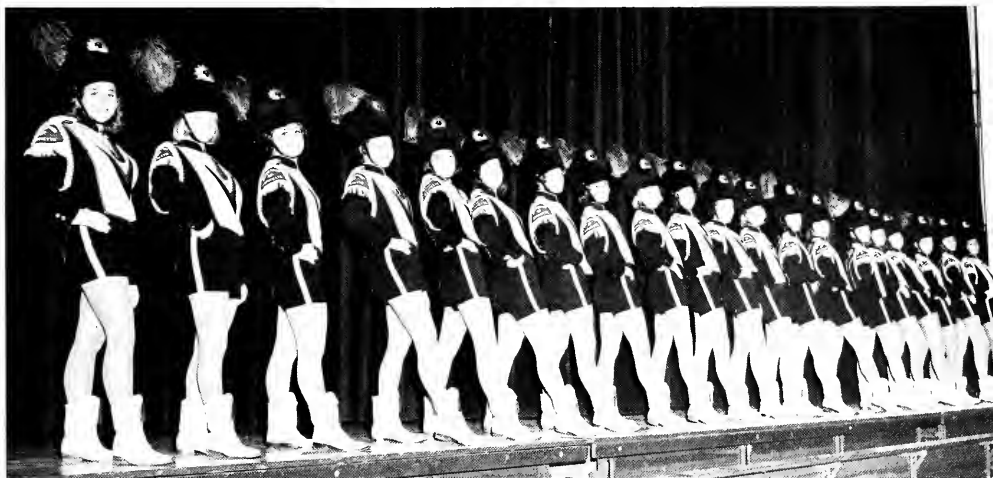

Band members began practicing the state fair routine a month before school was in session and continued into the first months of school with rehearsals three times per week. The band placed eighth out of eighty-six in the state fair contest. Our Broncho marching band was very active in other events too, such as the Riverview, Chicago, Mardi Gras, the state circus parade at Peru, and the annual Lafayette Christmas Parade.

The individual members showed their skill when twenty of the thirty-five entries in the Frankfort contest were first. This an envious achievement.

the football games. This entertaining group of girls is a recent addition to the variety of performers.

Pep, Basketball Bands Incite Fans

Adding their own brand of excitement to a Jeff basketball game is the Pep Band, directed by Carrol Copeland.

A definite factor in boosting the Jeff basketball and football teams to N.C.C. championships in the 1966-1967 season was the support given by the Basketball and Pep Bands. The two bands strengthened enthusiasm at pep sessions before important games as well as at the games themselves.

The Pep Band impressed many fans at half-time of football games with its unique routines. The Basketball Band, a smaller version of football's Pep Band, sparked emotions at strategic points in the games. Entertaining the audience at half-times with many songs, old and new, was also a duty of the Basketball Band of Jeff.

The Basketball Band played songs relating to the season at the Holiday Tourney games and the Jeff Valentine Block show, which was given at the Cathedral game February 14.

Mr. Carroll Copeland served as adult advisor and sponsor of the bands. Student director of the two bands was Jim White.

Stage Band Adds Glitter to Dances

"The Sixteen Sounds," another name for the Jeff Dance Band, consists of four trombone players, four trumpet players, five saxophone players, one bass viola player, and drummers.

This group of skilled musicians have entertained at convos at Sunnyside Junior High and at dances around the state. This March, they also performed at a concert here at Jeff along with the orchestra. These various performances not only gave them more experience, but they also gave them the chance to excel in musicianship. The Dance Band has played at several proms throughout the state also.

This year, the Dance Band again took first in the District Solo and Ensemble Contest. This enabled them to participate at the State Solo and Ensemble Contest. They have taken first place at the State Solo and Ensemble Contest fifteen times in the past and one second.

Mr. Carroll H. Copeland was the adult advisor to the Dance Band, and they were under the direction of student director Jim White.

Excellence in Athletics

Excellence was very prominent in the field of Athletics at Jefferson in 1967. Both the basketball and the football North Central Conference trophies were won with undefeated records. The football team went on to an undefeated record for the entire season. The roundball players added their twenty-fourth consecutive sectional title to the Jeff record—a feat unequalled by any other high school in the state. Wrestling, too, provided a source of pride for the Red and Black as Rick Rouse placed fourth in state competition. Jim Sharp, senior swimmer, broke a number of long-standing school records and was a terrific asset to the swimming team. A state baseball tourney returned to the curriculum in the Spring.

The coaches, the teams, the fans, and school spirit combined to make this year an excellent one for Athletics at Jefferson.

Undefeated Season and N.C.C. Title

Senior end Jim Haskins gathers in the pigskin and sets out for still another six-point Broncho touchdown.

To the tune of "Who are, who are, who are we? The best darn team in the N.C.C.," the 1966 Jefferson Broncho football squad galloped to an undefeated season and a North Central Conference championship. Enthusiasm was a keynote as capacity crowds, both home and away, viewed an inspired Broncho team. Ably coached by Mr. Kenneth McCaffry and his staff, Mr. Richard Skibinski and Mr. Norman Willey. The Broncos overcame such outstanding opponents as Anderson, Indianapolis Cathedral, and Richmond. Players, coaches, and cheerleaders were honored at the N.C.C. banquet which was held at Jeff in November.

Fans Proud of Colt Record:4-1-1

Sophomore halfback Bob Lang sprints down the field as he tries to pull away from a fast approaching tackler.

Jeff "B" team football coaches, Jack Schult and Robert Downing, were more than satisfied with the admirable record of four wins, one tie, and one loss. The single defeat, only the second in the last two seasons of "B" team play was to Kokomo, 12-6. Tying Kokomo 14-14 in a second contest between the two teams made up for this somewhat.

The Colts were a well-balanced team, exhibiting both commendable attacks on the offensive and above average play on the defensive. Both coaches were pleased to see this new team uphold the Jeff tradition of good mental attitude and sportsmanship. The industrious effort of the Colts this year would seem to guarantee a bright future in varsity football action in the near future.

Harriers Improved During Season

Phil Hurt, coach of the Jeff cross-country squad, again showed that hard work can result in a good team. Coach Hurt was faced with a major rebuilding year as practices started in July. Seven members of last year's undefeated squad were lost through graduation. Starting with only two returning lettermen, a new team was developed. However, only half of the members had seen varsity competition during the previous year. This inexperience hurt during the first half of the season. The team began to place well, however, as the runners gained more confidence.

More NCC Title

The Jefferson Bronchos finished their season in glory with a victory over Indianapolis Wood. The overall record, 18-2 speaks well for coach Marion Crawley's team.

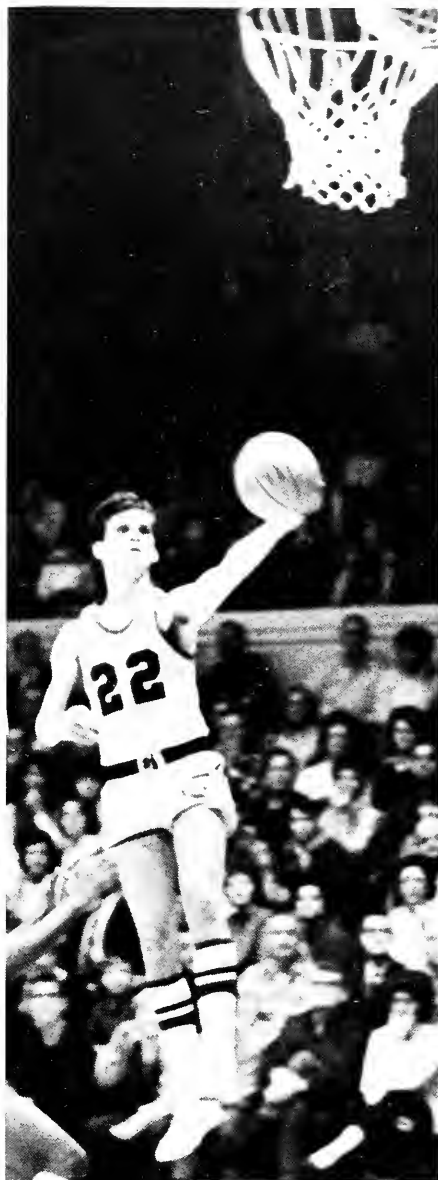

Although the Bronchos lacked height, they overcame their taller opponents with quickness and aggressiveness. Four returning senior lettermen plus one returning junior made up the starting five. Another four returning senior lettermen added up to make a strong bench.

Coaches Norm Willey and Dick Skibinski expertly guided the varsity squad to a 9-4 season record. Seven seniors, consistently coming through with wins, formed the backbone of an experienced and strong grappling team. As in all sports there were hurdles to be overcome, but in wrestling the most real one was controlling weight.

Senior Rick Rouse placed fourth in the state while Bob Lenartz and Larry Long took positions in the regionals. Sixteen varsity letters were awarded at the banquet. Rouse was voted most valuable; Long most improved.

Jim Sharp Breaks School Records

Jefferson was well-represented in the sport of swimming as two new school records were set.

Practicing in the Y.M.C.A. pool occupied many hours for the swimming team which was coached by Mr. Pete Schug. Outstanding performances by senior letterman Jim Sharp resulted in the breaking of two school records. Jim swam the 200 yard individual medley in 2:09.9 and the 400 yard freestyle in 4:15. Three boys—John Fletemayer, Bob Talbot, and Jim Sharp—qualified in sectional action, and Jim Sharp placed sixth in the 400 yard freestyle and third in the individual medley in the state meet which was held at Indiana University in February.

Fugitives Win '67 Intramural Post

The intramural basketball program at Jefferson has been a long established opportunity to participate in a sport, for many the only chance at a team activity. Shortly after the beginning of the basketball season, Mr. McCaffry, who has been the organizer of intramural for the past six years, announced a meeting of all interested students. Enough players turned out to form twelve ten-member teams which met one day each week to practice. Officials for the games were furnished from the ranks of the players.

Team names ranged from the Misfits to the A's, the Beavers to the Fugitives. The teams' names were in some cases indicative of their records; the A's record was the best with nine wins and only one loss. In tourney action the senior team of John Scheuman, Bob A. Page, Jim Haskins, Bob W. Page, Rick Rouse, Mike Johns, and captained by Larry Long came out on top for which they all won fine ribbons. Their final season record was seven wins and three losses.

The intramural basketball program at Jefferson has long been an integral part of student activities.

Larry Long, team captain of the intramural champions, shoots a free throw while his teammates encourage him.

Racketmen Finish Second in Conference

Jefferson's 1967 tennis squad was bolstered by three lettermen with junior Dick Cochran serving as captain. They entered the season with the hope of coming in third for the North Central Conference Championship.

In 1966 the team compiled an over-all record of fifteen wins and one loss. Their 7-1 record gave them second place in the N.C.C. C. J. Hopkins coached the team to victory.

Senior Lowell Shonk shows fierce determination as he prepares to return his opponent's strongly hit serve.

Lester Voted Most Valuable Player

Walt Mangold begins to run a little faster as he nears the end of one more two-mile race on the Jeff course.

Coach Bob Downing worked his trackmen to a fine point of conditioning. As the sprinters sprinted and the milers miled their breaths came with less strain, their stamina built to a hard line. Co-captains for the 1966 track team were Mike Lester and Don Worthington. Lester, voted Most Valuable Player for three years and Worthington who was awarded the Orville Martin Mental Attitude honor formed an experienced segment of the team. Senior Steve Minniear established a record by going through the two mile run in 10:18:7.

Jeff Bowlers Meet at Star Lanes

The Jefferson High School Bowling League met every Tuesday night at Star Lanes. This year's league consisted of eight separate teams which played three rounds.

On team chose a unique name—"The Timber Toppers." This team lived up to its name by leading the other teams at the end of the season. Members of this championship team were as follows: Mick Rauch, senior; Tom McDuffee, junior; Jim Runyan, sophomore; and Dave Hurtt, junior. Their overall average was about .778. The second place team was called the "Experimenters." Members of this team were as follows: Denny Lancaster, senior; Mike Hayward, sophomore; Brad Linback, sophomore; and Terry Ross, senior. The overall team average was .600. A single-game high of 278 was bowled by junior Dave Hurtt.

This year's league officers were as follows: Dave Cortner, captain; Dave Hurtt, secretary, and Lee Klinger, treasurer. Mr. Paul Deppert and Mr. Harold Smith were the co-sponsors of the league.

Jim Runyan looks down the alley with determination as he hopes to add another strike onto his bowling score.

Creating spirit are varsity cheerleaders Marsha Kennedy, Margie Glenn, Carol Emery, and Linda Edwards.

Alternate cheerleaders Tracy Bibler, Nancy Smith, Debbie Crose, and Larry Long willingly sub on short notice.

Led by the Cheerleaders, Football

B-team cheerleaders Kim Replogle, Pam Henderson, Candi Hinkle, and Delinda Foster practice new yells.

Inducing spirit among the boys is the responsibility of J-Club cheerleaders, seniors Joe Ray and Mark Beck.

Recently enlarged by forty girls, the Jefferson Block section enthusiastically cheers the team on to victory.

and Basketball Blocks Back Teams

Boasting 225 girls in red and black earmuffs and mittens, the newly-formed football block entered the picture to energetically cheer its team on to an N.C.C. championship. The football block section was organized under the same co-captains, and sponsors as the regular basketball block, doing no special routines, but giving support to the players.

Basketball block was enlarged to 338 enthusiastic fans who learned new and better card and pompon routines from senior co-captains June McKenzie and Joy Good and junior co-captains Pam Arman and Jennifer Robinson. It was the duty of sponsors, Miss Jean Hilkert, Mrs. Mary Brunk, and Mrs. Carol Kildow to aid these girls in discipline and seating.

The block girls were led in new and renewed yells by varsity cheerleaders, Marsha Kennedy, Marjie Glenn, Carol Emery, and Linda Edwards and "B" team cheerleaders Candi Hinkel, Pam Henderson, Kim Replogle, and Delinda Foster.

Discussing their agenda for the first football block section are the captains, Joy Good and June McKenzie.

GAA Held State Badminton Tourney

Volleyball is one of the many activities which Peggy Mahara, secretary-treasurer of GAA, participates in.

There's one good way for girls to keep trim and healthy. That's to join the Girls' Athletic Association. This year there were fifteen members. Under the coaching of Mrs. Eleanor Beard, the year was started with the election of officers. Diane Harrison was elected president; Barbara Howland became the vice-president; and Peggy Mahara was elected the secretary-treasurer.

The girls practiced hard all year. The first thing they practiced was badminton. A tournament was held in which Peggy Mahara received a third place ribbon for her efforts.

The GAA also participated in inner school and district competition in volleyball.

Then they were found at the bowling alley. A school tourney was held in bowling.

Spring took the girls outside for exercise as they played softball.

The year was ended by participating in the State Track Meet which was held at Ball State University.

Managers Checked All the Equipment

The student managers, an integral part of the athletic teams, are often overlooked by the student body. This group of boys are always found extremely busy before games and after practices. They are in charge of checking all the equipment, sorting out the dirty, sweaty uniforms, keeping the locker room clean, and assisting the coaches in every way they can.

The managers of the football team for this year were: Leo King, Fritz Ahlersmeyer, Jerry Hicks, Gary Kineer, and Mark Wick. Jim Smith, Mike Vernon, and Gary Kineer served the basketball teams, while Tim Goodpaster managed the wrestling team.

In the spring sports, Leo King and Bob Hicks were the managers for the baseball squad. Jerry Hicks, Ralph Ward, and Tim Goodpaster served the track team.

This group of boys received a well-earned "J" for their outstanding service to the athletic teams, making them eligible to join the ever famous club.

After the team has gone home after practice, manager Jim Smith is still busy cleaning up the locker room.

Excellence of Personalities

To achieve excellence has been a goal of Jefferson pupils and teachers for many years, and the 1966-67 school year was no different. The administration did its utmost to build a balanced academic foundation for each pupil. The new Jefferson High School has been another project which moves toward achieving excellence. Helping the authorities of Jeff were the secretaries. These women played an extremely important role in the functions of the school. The pupils, too, have made many contributions to this goal. By working on projects as a class they learned to get along well together and to organize themselves. Through contact with one another, they learned to get along with other people also. When the efforts of the pupils, the administrators, and the secretaries combine with an honest desire to succeed, it is easy to see how Jeff has built such a good name.

JEFFERSON HIGH SCHOOL

Administration Guides Jeff, Pupils

Dr. J. Russell Hiatt in his job as superintendent of schools had the responsibility of guiding the complete city school system. His duties included presiding at school board meetings, keeping records for the school city, supervising the expenditure of funds, and establishing and implementing the major policy of the school system.

The principal of Jeff, Charles J. Martin, guided the daily operation of our school. Working closely with him were R. William Levering, vice principal in charge of curriculum and instruction, and Leonard Smith, vice principal in charge of administration. Mr. Levering's job was to maintain discipline and see that school rules were observed. With the help of the faculty, Mr. Smith planned the year's courses and chose textbooks.

The guidance counselors assisted the students in choosing their courses and careers. Working on this staff were James Murray, Mrs. Krueger, Paul Deppert, Miss Jean Hilkert, Frank Lane, and Richard Thoennes.

The school board opened the bids for the first phase of the new Jefferson High School building this year. After agreements were made and contracts were signed, the site for the school was leveled. Construction is scheduled to begin this summer, and the new school will begin to take shape.

Besides making arrangements for the new school, the city school board was engaged in many other activities. In administering to the needs of the school city, the board located new teachers, planned new and different curriculums, and provided for the maintenance of the Lafayette Public Schools.

School Board: Top Row: Robert W. Bibler, president; Roger D. Branigan, Jr., treasurer; Ralph M. Daily, vice president; Frank P. Flynn, Jr. Bottom Row: James E. Middleton, secretary; Richard E. Ramhapp, Harry J. Von Seggern, A. Glen Armstrong.

Mr. Leonard Smith discusses with John Garhart, a new English teacher, the books used in the Jeff courses.

Fortunately, Mary Ewan's trip to Mr. Levering's office is one which requires business rather than discipline.

Jeff Teachers Tour Our Continent

It seems as though Mr. Kenneth Andrews and Mr. C. J. Martin must tell the boys about the one that got away.

Jeff teachers this year were content to stay on the North American continent.

Four of our adventurous teachers took a fishing trip to Knife Lake in Canada. Enjoying the fishing were Mr. C. J. Martin, Mr. William Levering, Mr. Kenneth Andrews, and Mr. Harry Green. Just across the border visiting Wisconsin and Lake Superior was Mr. Steven VanMatre.

Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Hopkins and their visitor from Europe toured the middle and Eastern states stopping in New York, Washington, D.C., Niagara Falls, and Cleveland, Ohio.

Mr. and Mrs. George Price and Mr. James Tesmer were found to be in sunny California during the vacation. Visiting in Texas were Mrs. Katurah Wray and Mr. Ernest Cortner. Another southern traveler, Miss Jean Hilkert, toured Georgia.

Instead of travelling, several Jeff teachers chose to stay here in Lafayette. Helping here at Jeff to move the library to what was the auditorium was Mrs. Erma McVicker.

Mr. Harry Green, English teacher, beams with pride as he displays a prize small-mouth bass caught in Canada.

While thinking of all the bass and carp he is about to catch, Mr. Richard R. Leavitt portages into Knife Lake.

Future Seemed Nearer This Year

After the magazine sale has ended, Paul Bergren still has the job of distributing the prizes to seniors.

On June eleventh the graduating class of nineteen hundred and sixty seven completed their three excelling years at Jeff.

Through their years of studious activities, these students elected three groups of class officers. Their last political campaign was completed by the election of Jim Smith, president; Doug Sheets, vice president; and Lee Hall, secretary-treasurer.

Laurie Smith and Paul Bergren were the co-chairmen of the annual magazine sale. After a slow start, the seniors splurged on the final day and met the sales goal of $1,200.

The senior boys paced the way in sports, and thus, all sports concluded their seasons far above average. Seniors also headed clubs as officers or members in all organizations.

For these seniors there was a dual finale. With the playing of Pomp and Circumstance during the grand march, the members of the class of 1966 ended their social life at Jeff. The acceptance of their diplomas was with misgivings, tears and happiness.

James Murray, class sponsor, aids senior officers—Doug Sheets, vice president; Lee Hall, secretary-treasurer; and Jim Smith, president, in planning details for the magazine sale, senior gift, prom, and other projects.

Juniors Begin Thinking of College

Room Captain Bill McQueen checks in the Nautilus Room after school to turn in the under-class picture money.

This year opened in a typical manner for the class of 1968 as Dan Clark, president; John McCaw, vice president; and Carol Emery, secretary-treasurer accepted their new positions as junior class officers. Guiding these officers in their leadership of the class was Mr. Paul Depert.

October 7 the juniors proudly accepted their long-awaited class rings. The arrival of the rings marked the official acceptance into the ranks of upperclassmen.

Saturday, October 22, was a challenging date for many of the junior class. The PSAT test was offered early in the morning for those college-bound. The day was climaxed by the Sunshine Bronchoette Gallop.

The annual wrapping paper sale began on November 15, with Nancy Smith and Bill Kirkpatrick as co-chairman. The profit will be used to help finance the 1968 Prom and the gift to the school.

As freshmen, the pupils took Iowa Test of Achievement. These tests were retaken at the end of the junior year.

The able leadership of John McCaw, vice president; Dan Clark, president; Mr. Paul Depert, class sponsor; and Carol Emery, secretary-treasurer, guides the class of 1968 to a successful and outstanding junior year.

We Found Jeff to be More Strict

The sophomore class of Jeff first met as a group to choose their officers. Fred Coon was elected president of the class. Aiding him during the year were Rick Cunham, vice president, and Patty Haddock, secretary-treasurer.

These pupils slowly conformed to the overcrowded conditions at Jeff. They also let the dream of attending the new Jefferson fade into the background.

With the help of Mrs. Gertrude Krueger, sophomore sponsor, the class began to build its treasury which after three years, will be used for the senior prom. As in previous years, the sophomores sponsored the pencil machines in the halls and the name cards which were sent by the seniors in their graduation announcements. As a class, they decorated the first-floor halls in collaboration with the Homecoming celebration contest.

Envious of the juniors when they received their rings at the beginning of the year, most sophomores anxiously awaited the ordering of their own rings.

Sophomores listen attentively as Mrs. Beard explains what will be required of them in physical education.

Mrs. Gertrude Krueger, sophomore class advisor, meets frequently with class officers Fred Coon, president;

Patty Haddock, secretary-treasurer; and Rick Dunham, vice president. New activities are in their program.

Acknowledgements

Discussing picture schedules is Mr. Kenneth Andrews, yearbook advisor, and Mr. Gil Hutton, photographer.

We would like to thank those people who helped us. We would especially like to thank Mr. Kenneth Andrews, our advisor, for his guidance and trust.

We are grateful to Mr. Gil Hutton for taking time to work with us. Others deserving recognition are our proofreaders, Mrs. Mary Brunk, Mr. Robert Butz, and Mrs. Katurah Wray.

Our stationery and forms were printed by Mr. Elbert Morgan and his pupils. This year our book was printed in Charlotte, North Carolina, by the Delmar Printing Company.

We owe a debt of gratitude to Mrs. Mary Prince for keeping our room clean and neat. Mr. Charles Martin, our principal, the faculty and the student body also have our sincerest thanks for all their cooperation.

The June Commencement of the 1966 graduating class of Jefferson High School represents the growing anticipation of future success in occupations and further education in college for the 1967 senior class.

Happiness for Tri-Editors Barb Gould, Jeanne Lottes, and Pam Moffitt is cleaning up after a year of hard work.

Harry,
You are real sweet guy with a great personality. Best of luck here at Jeff's the coming years in your future.
Cheryl Miller

What beautiful flowers! I went to the grove of Jeff
and just showed him
it's a real nice place. I would have loved to see them
too. Love you!
Cheryl Miller

Dary-

Don't ever forget Mrs.
Kildou's English class and all the fun we've had. Good Luck always!

Boner.
I can't say
it's been nice having you haven't orch. Can't think of sign will I can't think of anything nice so I'll
off. Dicki Richeson
